Alan –

I have attached two versions of the riparian section – The old version is the pre-modification from TW (i.e., I rejected all of the changes suggested by TW), and the new version of the latest and greatest version. There are some pros and cons about the new version. I have made only three small suggestions (they are on page two of the “new” version of the document. I will call you.

Peter,

The attached version of the GAPs document represents one of the earlier, but not earliest, versions. You can see the contrast between this and the two I sent you earlier.

As always, thanks for your input.

Here are a few responses back in the comment section. We should talk about the language on wanting to define the scope of the riparian rule as trying to meet the PCW standard and only applying it to where there are salmon, steelhead and bulltrout. This covers fewer river miles than ODEQ staff had envisioned.

Richard and Dick:

Attached is a first cut at an exchange on what it would take to address current issues regarding the Oregon CZARA program with respect to forest practices. This is only a draft for discussion purposes and we look forward to continued discussion. I believe we have a call set up for early next week to follow up but Will and I would welcome your feedback in advance of that if you can share it.
